Why You Should Attend

Class Actions, Antidote to Corporate Greed?

The recovery of funds that have been lost to investors and institutions, through corporate misrepresentation or other wrongdoings.

Fund Managers remain ultimately responsible for the recovery of all monies due to their funds; the returns from Securities Class Actions are included in those monies.

Whether one chooses to make a claim or not, there is still a responsibility to remain compliant and have a process in place to monitor and be aware of the Fund's exposure to such cases.

Every year in securities class actions, settlements are reached worth tens of billions of dollars.

- Less than 50% of institutional investors regularly file claims.
- In a 7 year period over 3.5 billion went unclaimed.
- There are thousands of lines of stock involved in open securities class actions.
- New settlements are being made every week, and the average value per corporate pay-out in 2019 was $30m.
- We have designed this workshop with the following participant roles in mind; Operational Management, Risk Managers, Compliance, Finance, Treasury and Portfolio Managers in Banks, Asset & Investment Managers, Stockbrokers, Custodians & Pension Funds.
